Gotta's Farm & Cider Mill Named Portland's Business of the Year

Gotta's Farm & Cider Mill, 661 Glastonbury Turnpike, has been named the 2013 Business of the Year by the Economic Development Commission. The award was presented at a ceremony held on March 5th, where the business also received a citation from the Connecticut Legislature presented by State Senator Art Linares and State Representative Christie Carpino. Gotta's Farm & Cider Mill opened in 1898 and the business is now run by the fourth generation, Richard Gotta and his wife Jackie. The business, known for their fresh cider, fruits, vegetables, flowers, bedding plants, holiday decorations, trees, baked goods, and more, also has a location on Portland-Cobalt Road, the QP Market. Gotta's generosity in the community also spans generations, with pie and plant fundraisers helping to sustain music and scouting programs in the town. And after a long winter, it was great to hear that it won't be long before the familiar "Pick Your Own Strawberries" sign goes up on Main Street!
